

Borton
Lawson

Wetlands

Since 1992, Borton-Lawson has been assessing, delineating, and mitigating wetlands in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In fact, our staff has assessed over 5,000 acres of wetlands and delineated over 500 acres of federally designated wetland/water within the Commonwealth. This experience has allowed us to develop a very strong relationship with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection, Conservation Districts, and the United States Army Corp of Engineers. Extensive knowledge of regional vegetation, soils, and hydrology conditions gives our staff a base to conduct accurate wetland assessments and delineations quickly. Additionally, our team's understanding of State and Federal wetland regulatory requirements gives the group a knowledge base to efficiently work within the regulatory requirements during planning and throughout design development of a project.

landscape.survey.architecture.electrical.stormwater.mechanical.environmental.gis.land development.

Imagination. Delivered.
www.borton-lawson.com